Addie Ade's Adventures

The Minute-a-Day Serial 66
CHAPTER 66—You look tired this evening, Mary—I'm afraid I and I shouldn't have.
COME—Out for supper, Addie was saying, as they all sat around the table and watched Bill carving a large roast. "Don't let me go," he said.
FOOLISH—Mary replied, "if I'm a little worn, it's only from answering the 'phone and the door-bell all day. It seemed as though one or the other of them rang every 10 minutes all day long."
"What was the trouble—Agents?"
ASKED—Sal. "I bet I know what it was!" exclaimed Addie. "Didn't you say you were going to ut those ads I wrote about your furniture for sale in the paper yesterday?" "You."
GUESSED—It laughed Mary, "and that's why I don't mind being tired this evening. The bulky sideboard and the oak bedroom suit are both gone, and I could have sold Bill's old desk, if I had."
DARED—Now Bill and I are thinking of putting this money toward a refrigerator—we have more than.
HALF—Enough for one now. "Get it right away," exclaimed Addie. "You have."
ENOUGH—To buy a fine refrigerator—if you'll read the classified ads in the paper, you'll find out who has a slightly used one to sell at a bargain."

INDUSTRY SHOWS
ACCELERATION

Settlement of Rail Strike Followed by Increase in Employment—New England Gains.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Industrial employment in all parts of the country has been accelerated by adjustment of coal and rail strikes, although inadequate car and fuel supply has retarded a further improvement, the department of labor announced yesterday in a survey of reports from principal industrial cities.

Reports from 65 leading cities showed an increase in employment during September as compared with August, while 17 cities reported a decline. Industries showing increased employment were railroad repair shops, tobacco and textile manufacturers, iron and steel and their products, food and leather, lumber, paper printing and chemical and allied products.

Decreased employment was disclosed in "liquor and beverages, vehicles for land transportation, metal and products other than iron and steel, and stone, clay and glass products." Building construction, said the survey is maintaining a steady pace in practically all sections, while the most encouraging sign of prosperity is the threatened common labor shortage everywhere. Elimination of transportation and fuel difficulties, the department declared, will speed production and employment to a higher degree than has obtained since the war.

Adjustment of textile labor controversies has "increased employment in that industry tremendously," while improvement in the general situation was shown generally in New England. Reports from 1,428 concerns on Sept. 30 showed they had 28,668 more employees on their payrolls than on Aug. 31.

Rewards Domestic Virtue.

Among the varied activities of the French Academy is the distribution every year of the sum of 2,500,000 francs in honor of merit, not only for literary excellence, but for filial devotion; to compensate the under-paid; for domestic virtue, and to help the needy. The money comes from various foundations, notably that of Baron de Montyon, who died in 1820, and Monsieur Cognac, at one time proprietor of a large Paris department store. The academy must give yearly to each of 90 families in straightened circumstances the sum of 25,000, but only on condition that the family has nine children. Filial devotion by a person not less than 20 years old is rewarded yearly by 1,500 francs, and an equal amount goes to a servant not under 60 years of age who has remained in the employ of the same master more than 20 years, and has received only part of the wages due, or else very small compensation. Two medals valued at 500 francs each are conferred on persons not less than 60 years of age who are in "difficult circumstances." The sum of 5,500 francs is to be given yearly to an unmarried woman servant who has served with devotion a family or preferably a maiden lady in adverse circumstances. Another testator who specified that his net assets were to be distributed every two years in prizes of 1,000 francs each to poor but well brought up young women of irregular birth.

The academy also awards literary prizes amounting to nearly 200,000 francs a year. As in the case of the prizes for merit, the first one was founded by Baron de Montyon. His prize of 18,500 francs goes to the most moral book of the year. The literary prizes are few and good, valuable than those awarded for merit. The largest, after the Montyon, is the Jean-Jacques Berger prize of 15,000 francs, which is awarded every five years for the best work dealing with the city of Paris.

In Order to Become Rich

it has been said a man must be able to do these three things well:
1. Make Money
2. Save Money
3. Invest Money
Few men are skilled at all three.

Our commercial service helps you make money; our savings service helps save money, while our trust service aids in the investment and conservation of your funds during your life time and beyond.

A Passing Opportunity

The following table clearly shows the decline in interest rates on WESTERN FIRST MORTGAGE FARM LOANS, according to monthly circulars issued by us for August, September and October, 1922:

	Total number of Loans listed	Number of 7% Loans	Number of 6 1/2% Loans	Number of 6% Loans
August circular,	27	22	5	0
September circular,	23	13	8	2
October circular,	22	0	16	6

This decline in rates is the result of easier money conditions in the West, a situation which has already prevailed in the East for some time.

There is still an opportunity for investors, who could not take advantage of the 7 per cent rate in August and September, to secure first-class 6 1/2 per cent loans now, but we would urge prompt action as our supply of loans bearing this rate of interest is very limited and may be entirely exhausted before November first.

Our October circular is ready for distribution and we would be pleased to have you call or write for a copy. Full particulars regarding our investments gladly furnished.
